Rutherford Attack on the Flag Fanaticism — or Conspiracy?

Telegraph wires bristled with disquieting news here at home this week-end. Police were called out in three states to rescue from mob violence some agitators who had been preaching that it was against the Law of God to salute the American flag. The idea alone, of course, is fanatical — but the fact that it occurred the same week-end in three different states, at Odessa and Waxahachie, Texas; Ardmore, Okla.; and Auburn, Calif., turns an act of religious fanaticism into an act of conspiracy and sedition.

From Texas I have here on my desk two copies of the literature these agitators were preaching from when the mob grabbed them.

The publications are "The Watchtower" and "Consolation," from the presses of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Inc., 117 Adams street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

J. P. Rutherford is president of the Watchtower organization. As a newspaper man I have heard of "Judge Rutherford" before—usually because some local fanatic would try to get a piece in the paper about the judge going to make a speech; the pieces being rejected because newspapers in general don't like to plug for another advertising medium, and, specifically, they won't touch the controversial material Rutherford deals in.

Rutherford's stuff is dry reading and childish logic. On page 10 of the May 20th issue of "Consolation" I read the following:

"Is the saluting of the flag of any earthly government by a person who is in a covenant to do the will of God a form of religion, and which constitutes idolatry?"

The answer, according to "Consolation," is:

"Respondents sincerely believe the Word of God and conscientiously believe that saluting a flag is a violation of His law."

"Consolation" attempts to justify itself at law by saying:

"In Halter v. Nebraska, 205, 36-41, this honorable court held that the flag is an emblem of sovereignty."

Certainly the flag is an emblem of sovereignty—but the sovereignty of freedom, not the slavery of idolatry as the Rutherford crowd say in their twisted logic.

There is no conflict between God and State.

Both are required, to bring order out of chaos.

Where you have State without God, you have Germany.

Where you have God without State, you have China.

We want none of these disasters in America.

Rutherford attacks the American flag, and tries to find foundation for that attack in a definition by a court living under that flag.

Even a fool knows that this is a mere juggling of words.

For two thousand years all men, whether Christian or worshipping some other God, have followed the precept of the Christian Bible—To render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's.

A good citizen will worship his God and salute his country's flag.

Nothing I have ever read in Scripture leads me to believe God would have much use for a man who wouldn't salute his country's flag.

And if that's how Scripture reads, you can't expect the police to be any more tolerant.

6 Are Injured in Camden Collision

Eason, Former Hope Man, Among Those Hurt

CAMDEN—Six persons were injured in an automobile collision on the Smackover highway, three miles south of Camden, late Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Eason and Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Snackover, all of Camden, were in one automobile, and the two women were injured seriously. They are confined to the Camden hospital. Mr. and Mrs. H. Adams and daughter of Smackover were in the other car. Mrs. Adams suffered a severe cut on the head, and the daughter also suffered a head injury. They were taken to Smackover for treatment.

Texarkana Racer Accidentally Killed in Jollop Races

William Horace Liston
22, Dies Late
Sunday

RACES CONTINUE

Raphael Bonham,
Companion, Suffers
Lacerations

One man was killed and another painfully injured in the semi-monthly jollop races held at Fair park Sunday.

William Horace Liston, 22, of Texarkana died about 8:30 p. m. at the Julia Chester Hospital.

Raphael Bonham suffered a lacerated scalp and a severely injured right eye.

American Legion officials announced Monday that the races will be held again June 17.

2,000 See Crash

The accident, witnessed by 2,000 horror stricken fans, occurred at the south east end of the track. The car without the protection of a top turned over several times. Another jollop carrying A. L. Whitman and A. H. Griffin, two Muncie boys crashed into the wreckage. Both were unhurt.

W. T. Smith of Hope, track official, attributed the accident to a faulty steering gear.

Liston is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Liston of 411 Perome street, a brother, George Liston, Jr., four sisters, Mrs. A. M. Sangalli, Mrs. George Gabour and Miss Elizabeth Liston, all of Texarkana, and Mrs. Ellis E. Chandler of Centralia, Ill., and a niece, Dorothy Liston.

Funeral Tuesday

Funeral services have been tentatively set for Tuesday afternoon at the East Funeral home with Dr. T. J. Williams, pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be in Hillcrest cemetery.

Powell, George Bowser, Rex Simmons, James Gabour, Charles Thompson and B. W. Sangalli.

Honorary pallbearers will be local and out-of-town members of the Texarkana Motorcycle Club of which the deceased was an official; B. R. Mitchell, John Thomas, Jr., Larry Osborn, Charles Northcutt, B. R. Givens, Tom Wallington, Billy Shelton, Bill Lam-

Background. Three U. S. Liners — Manhattan, Washington and President Roosevelt — have been ordered to bring back from Europe the last American citizens caught in the war zones. Difficulties of these refugees in getting out of England to safe ports of embarkation are vividly told here in an exclusive NEA dispatch.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON — When the so-called phony war suddenly became a blitzkrieg, the United States government advised the 4000 or 5000 Americans in Great Britain to head for Bordeaux, France, and for Spain and Portugal. This sapient advice caused many a gaudy remark among the Americans in London.

Apparently the State Department had forgotten that war rather upsets things. There were no longer French and British passenger airplanes leaving Britain every hour on the hour for Paris. Such planes were few, far between and very difficult to get on.

Also, there were no longer the frequent sailings of passenger vessels from Dover, Folkestone and Newhaven for Calais, Boulogne and Dieppe. Nor when, and if, passengers got on the rare boats that were sailing—daring the risk of Nazi submarines, torpedoes and bombers—did the French railways have nice, long trains ready to bear them to Paris and points further south.

Little Rock Gains 8% on 1940 Census

Main City 88,129,
Against 81,679 for 1930 Census

LITTLE ROCK — Little Rock and North Little Rock have a combined 1940 population of 109,261, compared to 101,097 in 1930, an increase of 8,164, or 8.07 per cent.

Totals compiled in the census are: Little Rock 88,129; North Little Rock 21,132; Metropolitan Little Rock 126,796; Pulaski county 156,153.

The figures, although official, are preliminary and subject to correction. E. J. Bodman, Fifth district census supervisor announced.

Little Rock's population increased 6,450, or 7.89 per cent, over the 1930 figure of 81,679. North Little Rock, which had 19,418 ten years ago, gained 1,714, or 8.81 per cent. Pulaski county, 18,426 above the 1930 total of 137,737, shows a gain of 13.4 per cent.

Hope police reported that everything except one shoe and the pair of pants were found on Don Self. The men are being held for trial.

Leche Convicted by Federal Jury

Former Governor May Face 15 Year Prison
Term

ALEXANDRIA, La. — (P) — Richard W. Leche, Louisiana's governor from 1936 until he resigned under fire last June 26, late Saturday was convicted of using the mails to defraud the state of $31,000 and faced a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

The government charged he pocketed the money through a deal involving purchase of highway trucks for the state.

Sentence was deferred until June 11 to permit arguments on motion for a new trial. The maximum penalty that can be imposed is five years in prison and $1,000 fine on each of three counts.

O. John Rogge, assistant attorney general, announced that the federal investigation centered in Louisiana the past 10 months would turn now on Michigan.

"We are now out of the trenches in Louisiana," he said. "Briefs on appeals in these cases can be handled through Washington. Michigan will be our next base of operations. I will go there next week."

W. C. Bullitt, U.S. Ambassador, Just Missed by Bomb

CITY IS TORN UP

Buildings Smashed
and Boulevards
Ripped Up

PARIS — (P) — The Germans bombed Paris Monday, wrecking many buildings, setting numerous fires, ripping up streets, killing 45 and wounding 149.

Unverified reports said one American was killed.

One of those who narrowly escaped was William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador. A bomb fell six feet from him, but failed to explode.

Several bombs fell on a particularly important building in Paris, but censorship, temporarily at least, banned transmission of its name or location.

Up and down some of the city's most fashionable boulevards and avenues, bombs smashed into buildings, broke pavements, sent lamp posts bouncing into streets and breaking trees to their roots.

Duke of Windsor's House

Several bombs landed near the house of the Duke, and Dughess of Windsor. One of the bombs landed in the street near the street from where they live, an apartment building caved in.

Next door to that place the neighbors stared glumly through panes, which dove into a hole 40 feet deep, scooped magically and thunderously out of their front yard.

The planes came over in great numbers, and soon the roar of French pursuit ships taking off to fight was heard, also the sudden barking of anti-aircraft guns. Then as the dreaded bombers moved in the fearsome parade across the ancient city the chatter of machine-guns was heard.

For a hour the city underwent the most terrifying experience in its nine months of warfare.

Bullitt, away from the embassy, was having luncheon at the time of his narrow escape.

250 to 300 Planes

It was reported officially that between 250 and 300 planes took part in the raid.

BERLIN — (P) — The capture of 330,000 British and French prisoners in the course of the last destructive battle of Arras, Flanders, it was reported Monday by the German high command. Its communiqué said this count was "preliminary."

Constantly increasing pressure on Dunkerque, the Allies' exit from the Flanders trap, was reported by the high command, but it was acknowledged the Nazi forces are being slowed down by the Allied rear-guard resistance.

Paris Is Bombed

PARIS — (P) — The long-awaited German air attack on Paris came Monday when a swarm of Nazi planes flew over the heart of the French capital and dropped bombs on the outskirts.

Raid sirens sent thousands to shelters. Anti-aircraft guns and machine-guns batteries on the city's rooftops sent up a defensive fire.

Ready for Italy

LONDON — (P) — Britain kept a watchful eye on Italy Monday as the first phase of the Nazi blitzkrieg in northern France entered the mopping up stage.

A growing opinion that Italy soon would enter the war was reflected in the Evening Standard, which said Italy might be an enemy "within a few days."

The flow of the British Expeditionary Force survivors from across the Channel, meanwhile, thinned to a trickle as the Germans, attacking under a punishing bombardment by the RAF, and the Allied fleets, slowly closed in on read guard units fighting to escape from Dunkerque.

Italy Postpones Fair

ROME — (P) — The Italian government Monday announced indefinite postponement of the 1940 Rome exposition.

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

CHAPTER I

ROSSY McAFEE laid his bag of baseball bats and ancient telescope grip on the ground and gawped at the wrought-iron arch which ran between the stone gate posts. The iron letters, "Lincoln College," were two feet high.

Rossy stared hungrily at the bronze figure of the Rail Splitter in the drive oval. He had had two ambitions in his gaunt soul—one, to make the big time as a ball pitcher; the other, to find the man who had killed his father and exact an eye for an eye.

Now he was overwhelmed with a third, to become an educated man. Standing there, a Lincolnian figure himself, he seemed to be stepping across the threshold of a new life.

The campus seemed deserted. He had expected to see hundreds, maybe thousands, of gay students chasing hither and yon. Instead all the life he found was a professor's cow chewing some dead grass.

"Well, I do declare!" Rossy muttered. "Ain't I at the right place?"

HE heard a chattering, clattering roar behind him, faintly at first, then increasingly louder. Before he could collect his wits, it was upon him. He whirled around, saw a girl speeding along Rossy jumped this way and that, trying to decide where she was going to hit. . . In another instant they were all piled up—legs, skates, arms, and grip. Rossy was yelling.

Anchors and Charts

In this shifting and shifty world it is hard to know what a man can do, and what new ideas he may be compelled to accept overnight.

We know that policies grounded in wishful thinking about the dead, dead as no good. We know that the world is changing, and that we must adapt ourselves to the new conditions. "Adapt or die," the old biology motto, is as true of today's political world as it is of the world of living things.

There must be some things on which we will not yield change or compromise. What is permanent and good to be held fast as an anchor holds a ship at rest? What is changing and new to be reappraised with every new development as a ship captain charts his course anew with changing weather, his eye always on the port of destination?

These things we must think of, consciously and clearly.

The one thing which America will never abandon, on which we must base everything else as a tall building is raised on foundations of bedrock, is this never surrender freedom.

That is the point at which the people of the United States will fight if necessary, the point where their liberties are threatened, by a foreign military aggressor, by domestic borse-frogs within, by any forces which propose to make the people less than free.

That does not mean that the people may not themselves impose on themselves disciplines more necessary than the "rights" of the people. But it must be the discipline prescribed by themselves in an orderly manner.

We will not allow a foreign soldier to set foot in the United States. We will not allow foreign governments or systems to exercise decisive influences on our own conduct of our own affairs. We will not allow native leaders to fasten tyranny on us as a free people.

The means to these ends will vary, as the captain's course varies according to wind and weather. It is unnecessary to hold to traditional views, traditional means, traditional techniques. These will change, and must change in the new world that is changing itself.

But our eyes must never for one moment leave the goal—a free people conducting its own affairs unshaken and undaunted, secure in the faith that government of the people, by the people, and for the people is right and good, and will stand when military tyrannies are fallen and forgotten.

Those Who Miss Wedding Bells Can Blame Themselves

Those who look longingly at the wedding bells that ring for others, but not for them, have only themselves to thank. Somewhere along the road, they have taken one turn after another leading to single, rather than double, blessedness.

Some are very well satisfied with their independent situation. Others at times convince themselves that they are in a sorry predicament. This, however, may be just a bit of the play-acting that all of us indulge in occasionally, casting ourselves in the leading role, particularly if it is a tragic one.

Those who seem "cut out for marriage," yet fail to achieve it, are the ones who can do most for themselves. They may have been going on, year after year, in the place, or job, or social group, which they happen to have made their own, regardless of the fact that it holds out little hope of their meeting any marriageable person.

Some are too modest—perhaps because over-proud, or afraid to risk having their feelings hurt by laying themselves open to ridicule—to show themselves as they are, and therefore hide the most interesting layers of their personality. Then they wonder why they attract only mediocre, uninteresting people.

Those who are but a little less shy feel at ease only with those whom they think of as inferior.

A few are so self-conscious about marriage, whether because they are afraid of showing their eagerness to attain it, or because they have been turned against the idea of marrying (perhaps by the imprint of the happenings of childhood in an unhappy home), that they make friends only with people who are already married.

This is doubly risky, since, in spite of their anti-marriage slant, they may be swept off their feet by an unexpected love for a married person.

WE THE WOMEN

"Yes-Wives" Are to Blame for Know-It-All Husbands

By RUTH MILETT
The man who is an opinionated bore usually is married to a "Yes-Wife." No matter how intelligent a man is, if he is married for any number of years to a Yes-Wife, he is sure to come to think of himself as a high authority on every subject under the sun.

Wife's to Blame If Husband Is Sure

So, while the Yes-Wife may have fewer quarrels with her husband than the wife who ventures to question her lord-and-master's verdicts occasionally, she is directly to blame for his know-it-all attitude.

No man can live day in and day out, year in and year out with a woman who thinks his say-so is the final word, without coming to think so himself.

And when that happens he is ruined for friendship, fellowship, and every kind of social life but the most superficial.

It becomes impossible for anyone to carry on a conversation with him. When he listens to the opinions of anyone else (and that is infrequently), he does so only to smack them down and come forth with the real and final answer.

He is so positive that he is right about everything that he doesn't bother to back up his statements and opinions with facts. He says so—and that is enough.

He Is An All-Around Expert

Nor does he limit himself to any field. He is willing to advance his expert opinion on anything. Never does he say the honest, and often endearing, words, "I do not know."

Why should he? He is the guy who knows everything. His wife has "yes" ed him into the certain belief that his judgment is infallible and his opinions priceless.

Birthday Celebration for Master Herndon
Celebrating the seventh birthday of her son Master William Robert Herndon Jr., Mrs. Billy Bob Herndon entertained a number of youngsters on Friday afternoon.

The guests arrived early in the afternoon and were invited into the dining room that was arrayed in the colors red, white and blue. The table was centered with a large birthday cake decorated with animal crackers and in the colors of the chosen scheme. After a jolly time of singing birthday songs and attempting to blow out the eight candles, the young guests were served delicious ice cream and birthday cake. Covers were laid for: Master Steve Powell, Master Henry Lile, Master Ned White, Master Billy Conway, Master Bobby Ward, Master Bobby Franklin, Master Jimmy Bruneh, Master Rufus Herndon III, and Masters Sonny and Kenny Brewer of Augusta.

Later in the afternoon, the guests donned colorful paper hats and attended a movie.

Miss Mary Ann Lile to Participate in Tomato Festival
Miss Mary Ann Lile, the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. M. Utah With Hollywood Crew Making Brigham Young Would Never Have Reached Movie of His Life

HOLLYWOOD — On location at Big Bear Lake for "Brigham Young": We drove 128 miles from Hollywood to watch the Mormons cross the Mississippi on their trek to Utah in 1848. Interestingly enough, many of those miles were over the trail actually used by the Mormons when they later journeyed from Utah to California. The "Mississippi River" was really an arm of Big Bear Lake. As we reached the location site, the Conestoga wagons were just pulling from the water. A cable linked all the wagons and extended to the shore where it was connected with an engine, used to help move the wagons. Horses were then led out into the water and hitched to the wagons and last of all the principals, Dean Jagger, who plays the title role; Mary Astor and Jean Rogers, a couple of his 12 wives, were rowed out to the wagons. Director Henry Hathaway yelled for action, an assistant director signaled and the wagons began to roll upon the dry land. Apparently the horses were doing the hard work, but really the cable and engine were pulling most of the weight. When the landing was made Hathaway called lunch.

Waded in Water to His Waist
After lunch Jagger dashed off and was soon wading right out into the lake. When the water reached his waist, Hathaway said, "Okay, Dean, that's for enough." Jagger had to make these shots to watch with some made a few days before showing him entering the river to see if it was suitable for crossing.
With his homespun trousers dripping and his boots squishing water at every step, Jagger mounted a beautiful gray horse named Blue Boy and at Hathaway's signal galloped along the shoreline toward the camera shouting, "It's only five feet deep. Load the wagons."
The scene was a good one, but Hathaway wanted another just in case of accident. So Jagger returned to his starting point, doused himself again, and traded Blue Boy for an identical was shot again.

The reason for the change of horses was that the altitude at Big Bear, 7000 feet, is hard on horses from the low lands. So the two horses are used in alternate scenes. This routine gives horse named Blue Jay. The scene the S. P. C. A. nothing to crab about. There is no society for the prevention of cruelty to extras, however, so they work much harder than the

Annapolis Is to Speed Up Training

To Turn Out More Officers for Expanded U. S. Fleet

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Plans are afoot to speed up the United States navy's training course at Annapolis to three years to meet the demands for officers in the vast expansion of the U. S. fleet.

According to the information, the navy course mapped out and on less than 24-hour notice from the Navy Department could put the stream-lined effect to give our fighting fleet 165 more ensigns a year than it is getting now.

The plan, of course, would have no effect on the 500 young men who are getting their stripes in June—but the second classmen (juniors), numbering more than 900, probably would be kept from their summer cruise to South America. Instead, they would find away in intensive training and be graduated at midyear early in 1941.

The 1,200 other young men in the Academy and the new class of plebes would be thrown into a speed-up curriculum of high gear training.

It's Happened Before

A lot of the frills and furbelows of modern education would be dropped. The advanced courses in English, for example, probably would go overboard. You don't need a knowledge of restoration comedy, to bowl with a bowler, or the history of the plunger, or a familiarity with the verse forms of Beowulf to crack commands down an engine-room speaking tube.

Also tapper for dismissal are some of the foreign language courses. A lot of the social activities at the Academy would be cut off. In the time thus saved, the young sea dogs would concentrate on technical studies, such as navigation, gunnery, electricity and steam.

It begins to appear that the country is rapidly expanding naval programs already has created a shortage of young officers in the fleet.

It was partially to offset this that the order was issued that only those youngsters in the 1940 graduating class who are physically unfit will be allowed to resign. In the past, when there was no shortage of officers, the young men could resign on graduation.

The officers detached from the fleet for post-graduate study at the Annapolis post-graduate school also have been ordered back to active duty.

A third measure to fill the gaps was taken recently when many officers returned from active duty for physical disability or some such thing were called to the Academy to become instructors, releasing able officers for fleet duty.

One fact which has created the demand has been reconditioning of a large number of World War destroyers. These are a little disparagingly referred to by some of the young navy boys as a "bunch of old cans" and they are not to be used for anything at the moment but Atlantic patrol duty, but they have to be officered and manned just as well as the crack ships in the Pacific battle fleet.

Gunnery, Not Poetry

If the order comes down to streamline the Academy training, it won't be the first time. During the World War, Annapolis was on such a schedule, turning out classes at midyear, the classes being known as 1917-A, 1917-B and so on.

Army officials say that plans for army expansion will not necessitate any changes at West Point. There, during the World War, however, the training course was virtually blitzkrieged, classes being graduated not only at the end of two and three years, but at the end of November, 1918, had only a little more than a year's concentrated schooling. These youngsters, however, were returned to the Academy later for further training.

Present army increase plans will create a demand for more officers, but reserve officers may be taken on for extended service of from six months to one year.

hundred were forced to remain at Genoa.

Their hopes now are pinned on the United States liner Washington, due at Bordeaux, France, Tuesday. United States Lines officials, however, were doubtful whether the Washington would call at Genoa after leaving the French port. They assumed a decision would depend on whether Italy entered the war by that time.

Third-class passengers, more than two-thirds of those on board, stood in line from early morning for the formalities of embarkation. Although precedence was given to Americans, they were forced to battle through crowds of unhappy refugees from Northern and Central Europe who resignedly awaited their turn.

Scores of British, French, Canadian and Australian, after waiting hours, were told they could not embark because they had failed to obtain exit visas, now required by Italian authorities on passports of citizens of the Allied countries.

Once aboard the liner, passengers found their troubles were by no means over. Several hundred had no cabin assignments and were compelled to sit on trunks on deck while emergency dormitory arrangements were completed.

Every foot of cabin space was made available. Cabins normally occupied by three persons were fitted for seven. The rich and not-so-prosperous were compelled to make sacrifices in privacy and comfort.

U. S. Communists Train Aides to Smear BFI, Start Sabotage

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Government investigators call the American Communists "A foreign conspiracy masked as a political party."

Reds in America are aggressive, well-organized and well-placed. They make up three-fourth of the 2500 dangerous foreign agents. The F. B. I. lists their sympathizers at an estimated total of 2,000,000 persons of all ages, races and stations from lowest to highest, capable of anything from stealing naval intelligence files—as they have done—to throwing a brick at a cop and then squealing about "civil liberties."

The Communists' latest is an attempted smear of their arch-enemies, the F. B. I. Having helped to disarm the F. B. I. of its best weapon against plotting—which is wire-tapping—they have a new trick. They send to local F. B. I. offices members who offer to reveal Red activities. When a G-man is assigned to investigate, they try to trap him with a woman as bait, in a disgraceful situation. "Once smear a G-man's reputation," they say, "and our friends in Washington will make them all lay off." This attempt has been reported from several sections of the country, and all G-men warned.

Red Agents Active in Eight Industries

Resolutions using identical, not complimentary, language about the F. B. I. have been passed all over the country by radical labor unions. One state radical unions in eight key industries, including aircraft, automobile, steel, rubber and very important communications.

What that means to U. S. defense is shown graphically by Washington map of factories doing defense work, largely in the northeast and California.

If they start blowing up, I was told, the Reds will be mostly to blame.

That means there will be such violence, investigators predict, if this country seems likely to enter the war and probably even if its aid to the allies grows. The next step will be strikes in aircraft and allied industries—then an attempted general strike.

For this attempt, admittedly desperate, Red leaders who have been trained in the Moscow school are at work in the United States. They are taught to seize or destroy not only factories, but centers of communications, telephone and radio stations, railroad terminals, airports—all the country's nerve centers—as the Nazis did in Holland.

Two recent developments in the news should be gratifying to fifth columnists whose immediate aim is the disruption of the newborn national defense program:

1. In California, federal authorities are investigating five attempts within 10 days to interfere with sources of power vital to three important aircraft factories. All the incidents involve cutting of water or electric power lines. So real did potential plane manufacturer Donald W. Douglas believe the threat of sabotage to be that he personally appealed to his 18,000 employees to be on guard.

2. Clear across the continent, in Kearney, N. J., another form of defense disruption is being demonstrated. Against the advice of their own union leaders, a local of the Industrial Union of Maritime and Shipbuilding Workers of America is on strike over a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. Four new U. S. Navy vessels, costing $36,000,000, are delayed by this strike.

Nazis, Communists Unite AGAINST U. S.

Mexico's Communists have come into money and trained a real Red army. They are working with numerous Germans lately come to Mexico, for conspiracy and to buy supplies. Through Spaniards, they interchange information about American defense plans for Moscow and Berlin.

In America, evidence multiplies of Communist co-operation. The Bund, in secret meetings and openly, no longer is hostile to the Reds, who in turn no longer boycott Germany.

Among American Fascists Donald Shea invites "Gentile Communists" to attend meetings of his anti-Semitic, anti-British Gentile league.

"Neighborhood councils" carry on whispering campaigns against defense, while the Youth Congress openly opposes it. A national Negro congress declares American negroes will not fight against Russia, and negro congressman Mitchell (Illinois) warns that France were being used for something far more vital.

Evidently the American embassy officials in London cabled all this to the State Department. So the Washington officials took another hitch in their galluses, admitting the first plan had been impracticable and accordingly advised Americans in Britain to go to Erie and to remain there until the government could send a vessel to some Irish port to take them home.

Again the message caused ironic comment. To southern Ireland or Erie, planes were never frequent and still less so now. The same applies to present to passenger boats. And before trying to get a seat on a plane or a passage on a boat, here are the hurdles the American must jump:

1—He must go to an American consul and get his passport validated for travel to Eire en route to the United States.

2—He must go to the British passport control and get an exit visa.

3—Since he is only allowed to take 20 pounds in cash with him, he must go to his bank and have them arrange with the British Treasury officials so that he can draw a reasonable fixed sum every week from his British bank account to pay his living expenses while waiting in Eire.

Must Report

When he gets to Eire, he must, at once report to the police and advise them of his various changes of address.

There is a further hitch. If anything like half of the Americans living in America.

the C. I. O. is turning negroes Red.

the sidewalk toward him. The noise came from wheels on her feet. She must have been going 200 miles an hour.

The girl yelled, tried to turn. Steel grated on concrete. Rossy jumped this way and that trying to decide which way she was going. She plunged on toward him, shouting for him to get out of the way.

She turned again, grasping air, and Rossy jumped the same way.

In another instant they were all piled up—legs, wheels, arms and grip. The girl was yelling and bawling. Rossy heard himself yelling too.

"Hey, what the—"

But he seemed to have helped break the girl's fall. They untangled themselves and he helped her to her feet. She rubbed her bruises. Then she laughed.

"I'm all right. I'm Judy Tolliver. That's what I get for trying to be a kid again. . . . Roller skating. Haven't been on skates for years, but it seemed like a good idea. . . . But who are you? You're new here, aren't you?"

"I'm Rossy McAfee. I'm a ball player. Pitcher." Well to make it clear at once.

"Ah, I see. You're wanting Coach Hurd. You'll find him at the gym. It's the brick building you see yonder through the trees."

ROSSY gathered up his luggage and walked slowly toward the gym, now and then turning to see if the girl was in sight. She wasn't. He came to the front door of the gym and knocked. No answer. He knocked again, and then tried the latch. It was locked.

"Huh!" he snorted. Removing one of his polished bats, of his own make, he beat on the door, listened, and then began mauling the door angrily. "This is the dumbest place for nobody to stay home."

"What is it?" People just appeared from nowhere, it seemed. This was a man, in easy old gray suit; he was thick, kindly, and distinguished. His age was perhaps 45. He wore boots—evidently an outdoor man. "Is there something I may do for you?"

"I'm Rossy McAfee and I come to school and I want to play ball, and where's Coach Hurd at—you ain't him?"

"Rossy McAfee!" the man repeated, and just stood there with a fixed look. He had the same look as the girl, only it was a man's look. He moved a slow hand across his eyes and stared again, remembered himself, and smiled. "I see. You're the ball pitcher from Hell'n-Damnation Holler. Coach Hurd told me about you. Come this way. Here—let me help you with your grips."

He took the bag of bats and led the way to the rear of the gym. "The athletes were not expected for registration until Monday, but Coach will take care of you all right." They entered by a back door and went through a labyrinth of showers and lockers. At a door the man knocked. "This is Rossy McAfee, Coach," he said when a sleepy head appeared in the door.

"Well, doggone my tintype, so it is!" the coach grinned, shaking Rossy's hand. "Come right in. Don't rush, Prexy." The middle-aged man said he'd be seeing him; and when he was gone, Coach Hurd pulled Rossy in and shut the door. "Well, well! How are you?"

"Who was him?" Rossy asked, jerking his thumb back.

"Doc Tollivar, president of Lincoln College."

"Did you say Tollivar?"

"It's Tollivar, not Tolliver, as you folks spell it in the hills. Different breed of dogs."

ROSSY'S eyes began to gleam. "A or c, a Tolliver's a Tolliver and they air all thieves and rascals. I know 'em. One of 'em killed my pappy long time ago in a ball game with a bean ball, and—why, lands, I bet a cow he was the feller!"

It ran all over Rossy, like a stroke of paralysis from fairy-ance. That man would be about the age of this thick man, too. He stared at the coach.

Then all at once Rossy realized he may have talked too fast and too much. An unwise word might destroy all his chances of a lifetime for revenge, to which he had dedicated his energy and integrity.

He talked fast. "Aw I never meant none of that, Coach. I just drool at the mouth sometimes. My pappy died from a fractured skull."

In his confusion he had picked up his grip, but he dropped it as suddenly, and the cotton cord holding the top broke, spilling red flannel underwear and shirts ing in Britain scooted to Eire they would more than fill every hotel and boarding house in Dublin, Cork, Cobh and Galway.

An investigation at the American embassy in London failed to reveal any panicky rush to get out of the country.

The fact is the most of the Americans, who do not go to Eire, to seek accommodations in uncongested areas.

But there is no great rush to do this. With all the information about Nazi parachute troops and fifth column operations in isolated regions in Norway, Belgium and Holland, people are more inclined to remain in the cities than take a chance in the country.

But there is no great rush to do this. With all the information about Nazi parachute troops and fifth column operations in isolated regions in Norway, Belgium and Holland, people are more inclined to remain in the cities than take a chance in the country.

Pen Isn't Mightier Than the Sword

Richelieu Was Right First Time

I am advised by a correspondent praising a recent Star editorial that "The pen is mightier than the sword." It is of course entirely ungrateful of me to look this gift-horse in the mouth, but in a day when there is more fighting than writing, and dictators are going up and democracies going down, a wise citizen will look narrowly at the props which are supposed to sustain our republic. As a matter of fact the pen is NOT mightier than the sword, and the original of this classic quotation has a quite different meaning from what is popularly supposed.

The quotation is from Richelieu. What he actually wrote was this: "Beneath the rule of men entirely great."

"The pen is mightier than the sword."

Richelieu, both ruler and writer himself, managed the sword as well as the pen. He was a realist, not a dealer in generalities—he could not possibly have written anything but just what he did.

And what he wrote means simply this: That the pen is mightier than the sword—when you aren't fighting.

Quotations are treacherous unless you consider the background from which they sprang. Consider Cardinal Richelieu:

The period in which he lived, 1585-1642, was one of the roughest in the rough history of France. Richelieu, Catholic cardinal and statesman, had his own private army, and supported the Queen's faction in French politics.

Opposed to him was the King's faction, which included those famous rascals, d'Aragnan and The Three Musketeers (1611).

In the roughhouse that was France in those days the pen didn't have a chance—a man had to fight to live.

But Richelieu, even though a soldier, looked beyond the horizon and saw a more peaceful day when government would be stable enough that men might settle their issues with the pen instead of the sword.

"Beneath the rule of men entirely great."

"The pen is mightier than the sword."

What Richelieu means is that, granted you have a country at peace, with law and order preserved at home, the pen is an abler weapon for humanity and justice than the sword—and so it is.

But there is a good deal of water between the whole quotation and simply the last line: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

I suspect millions of people, both in our country and abroad, have been deluded time and again by the misquoting of Richelieu's famous saying.

The pen alone is not mightier than the sword.

The pen is but one scratch in the whole book of democratic self-government.

Lose your national defense and your country will be conquered from abroad.

Lose self-government and your country will be conquered by a dictator from within.

The pen may be a factor in helping avert calamity, but mark me—freedom of speech and press are the first flowers of democracy to vanish before the sword, whether wielded from without or within.

Cherchez La Furniture

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. — (AP) — It was 4 o'clock in the morning. Joe D. Browning, justice of the peace, answered the telephone.

A voice said, "I want a search warrant. A fellow stole my wife."

"I can't give you a warrant to find your wife," Justice Browning said. "Well, just skip her," the caller said. "What I really want back is my furniture. The fellow stole that, too."

PUEBLO, Colo. — (AP) — A couple of Central high school girls, in a horned costume built for two, impersonated a cow too realistically at a dancing fete. A couple of dogs in the audience nipped at the heels of the make-believe dairy animal and barked.

German Broadcast

NEW YORK — (AP) — A German radio requested all listeners to remain tuned in Tuesday night for an "important announcement of a military nature" from the Western front headquarters of Adolf Hitler.

"The announcement will be made during the course of this evening," the German radio said, indicating the time would be around 8:30 p. m. CST. The request, broadcast in German, was heard at a shortwave listening post of the National Broadcasting company.

Fight for Years, Alone If Need Be, Churchill Pledges

Prime Minister Addresses Cheering House of Commons

DUNKERQUE FALLS

Germans Now Command French, Belgian Channel Coast

By the Associated Press

Canada may be used as the base for British empire's fight against Germany—in the event of a Nazi conquest of England—It was indicated Tuesday by Prime Minister Churchill, who told the House of Commons:

"We shall never surrender."

"And even if our island or even part of it is submerged and starving, then our empire across the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until in God's good name the New World in all its strength might set forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

Churchill told a cheering house that a fleet of 1,000 Allied ships rescued 335,000 French and British soldiers in the great retreat from the bloody battle of Dunkerque.

He warned Britain that "we must expect another blow to be struck at us immediately at us or at the French," and declared vigorously:

"Britain will carry this war to victory if necessary for years—if necessary alone."

Dunkerque Abandoned

PARIS — (AP) — The French admiralty announced Tuesday night the last Allied naval and army units had abandoned Dunkerque, leaving the city entirely to the Germans after destroying all supplies.

Germans Hold Channel

BERLIN — (AP) — The German high command Tuesday claimed the capture of Dunkerque, the Allied escape port from the Nazi trap in Flanders, and with it complete mastery of the entire French and Belgian Channel coast as far south as the Comme river.

The port fell after heavy fighting, the communique said, and German troops captured 40,000 prisoners and a "vast amount of booty."

Dunkerque Taken

BERLIN — (AP) — Nazi troops entered Dunkerque, and captured one of its forts, the German high command reported Tuesday, as the Nazi air force, back from an "experimental" bombing of the Paris region, awaited orders to strike again—in conjunction with a great land offensive which most Germans expect to start in the West any day.

The puncture of the Allied rear-guard defending the withdrawal from the German pocket in Flanders was achieved by hard fighting, the high command acknowledged.

German air raids Monday destroyed between 300 and 400 Allied planes in hangars and on air fields, in addition to shooting down 70, the communique said.

Wildlife Group to Meet June 18

State Officials Have Been Invited to Speak

The committee having in charge the annual meeting and fish fry of the Hempstead County Wildlife Association has set Tuesday night June 18th, as the date for the meeting recently postponed on account of rain.

T. J. Gay, Pres. of the Arkansas Wildlife Federation, D. N. Wall, Educational Director of the commission have been invited to attend.

After the fish fry new officers and directors will be selected for the Hempstead county Wildlife Association for the coming year, and a representative of this state Wildlife Federation will discuss the proposed amendment to make the secretary of the Game and Fish Commission a constitutional officer, directly responsible to the people of the state.

According to the regulations of the Hempstead County Wildlife Association, our directors shall be selected from each township in the county and four at large. These, with the officers of the Association shall constitute the executive board with power to act for the association.

Belgian King Leopold Writes Own Story to U. S. President

By LOUIS LOCHNER

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY. — (AP) — John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, disclosed Tuesday that President Roosevelt, from a personal letter written him by King Leopold of the Belgians, knows the inside story of the king's capitulation to the Germans.

Cudahy visited Leopold Sunday for two hours at a castle assigned him by the German army.

Here, the defeated king handed Cudahy a letter for the president in which the monarch told his side of the story.

Governors Ignore Nat'l Guard Action

Rhode Island Governor Warns Against Dictatorship

DULUTH, Minn. — (AP) — Side-stepping a 32-year-old rule against adopting resolutions the National Governors Conference approved Monday a "state ment" that "All steps should be taken to provide for defense, and each state pledges her resources, agricultural, industrial and military, to that end."

The statement, said Vermont's Gov. George D. Aiken who introduced it, "expresses an honest opinion—and avoids a little hot water." It ignored the controversial question of whether the governors should back President Roosevelt in his bid for authority to mobilize the National Guard.

Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island warned that standards of public business must be improved if the nation is to dodge the spread of dictatorships.

"Government is never a very popular institution," Vanderbilt said. "It interferes with the lives of citizens, it regulates and restricts their privileges, and puts them in jail, suspends their various licenses, and worst of all it takes some of their hard earned money in taxes."

"If you try the patience of the American citizen too long with stupid, inefficient, wasteful, selfish government, he is going to discuss ways else for it. He is then at the state where he is ripe for any quick philosophy that may come along."

Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia advised those who regard the public relief program as temporary to remember that "The poor you have always with you."

For the recreation hour, the hostess chose the game "The Bug" which was won by Mrs. Elbert Rider.

CIO Lashes Out at Law Against Reds

Say It Would Be Used to Crucify Labor Groups

WASHINGTON — (AP) — C. I. O. leaders said Monday that during the current "hue and cry" about fifth column several legislative measures had been proposed which would lead to repression of labor.

In a report submitted to the C. I. O. National Executive Board, the organization's Legislative Committee, headed by John L. Lewis, asserted that legislation barring employment of Communists and Nazis and limiting alien employment to 10 per cent of a plant's total personnel "would in reality be used against labor." The legislation was in the form of amendments to the La Follette bill to outlaw "oppressive labor practices."

"Under the guise of discharging alleged Communists, employers would be permitted to evade practically all of the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act in their attempt to destroy union organization," the report said.

It also attacked proposed legislation for the registration and fingerprinting of aliens.

"All too truthfully this type of hysteria," the report declared, "is usually conducted with the primary purpose of attacking labor organizations and subsequently attacking all citizens who may entertain progressive or liberal views."

Bible Translated Into Czech

PRAGUE — (AP) — A modern translation into the Czech language of Holy Writ is under preparation by a commission of Bible experts.

An early Latin text constitutes the basis for the work which is being carried out under the supervision of Doctor Josef Heger, professor of the Cheche University of Prague.

The idea of the work is to modernize the Bible linguistically and to omit obsolete words.

State Engineers Inspect Project

Drawings of Proposed Underpasses Are Submitted

N. G. Garner, chief bridge engineer of the State Highway Department and his assistant, Mr. Gibson were in Hope last week conferring with Charles O. Thomas in regard to the proposed underpass across the Missouri Pacific tracks.

Mr. Garner asked Mr. Thomas to draw up preliminary survey and drawings for the grade separations at several points with the intentions of eventually selecting the one which will best serve the needs of users of highways 29, and 4 and the citizens of Hope.

Mr. Thomas has completed drawings for crossings at Hazel and Hervey streets and mailed them in to the State Highway Department to be used in making preliminary estimates of cost.

Shocking Story Of 93 Little Pigs

COLUMBIA, Mo. — (AP) — A local farmer enclosed his farrow lots this spring with an electrified fence.

The farmer said none of his 93 pigs escaped or got mixed with a strange litter. The pigs had so much respect for the electric wire they avoided it even when the current was turned off. But when the fence was removed the farmer got his big shock. The pigs wouldn't even cross the line where the wires had been.

Advised to go to see his old flame, so as to get her out of his mind, Ted was obstinate.

"No," he said, "that would not be fair to the girl I am marrying. I have kept away from Ann for years."

and I must not go near her now."

Reluctantly, he married, and eased through a blissful honeymoon, a drab first year of married life. Nina was bitterly disappointed to find that marriage had turned her moody suitor into a husband of but one mood—gloom.

Then suddenly he changed. Ann had come to see him on business, and he was amazed to find that she no longer meant anything to him, except in his dreams. Seeing her in flesh and blood, he had to admit that he had outgrown her without knowing it.

With his excuse for being half-hearted in his married life gone, Ted began to appreciate Nina for what she was, instead of inwardly blaming her for not being a second Ann. Sprucing up and living his life in the present, he found his whole life attitude change, as he got into the habit of accepting things as they are and doing something about them.

Nina could not understand the difference in Ted, but she was so grateful for it that she asked no questions. Having her husband come alive and enjoy her company as he never blossomed out and became twice the person she had been.

If asked her secret for married happiness, she would probably say, "Get your husband to stop dreaming." But Ted would say, "Stop dreaming of has been."

WE THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT

The school-age girl whose social life has been pretty dull and drab during the winter can see that it picks up in the summer if she puts her mind to it.

To begin with, her means of entertaining in the summer aren't limited to her own small living room. She can get up picnics, organize swimming parties, round up a tennis foursome.

None of those things takes much preparation. And the shy hostess does not have to worry over how to make her guests enjoy themselves. When she plans an active party the guests take care of their own entertainment.

Then, too, with school behind her for three months, and nothing to do but loaf, there is plenty of time for putting her mind to party-giving.

Summer entertaining can be very inexpensive, too. Nothing beats a freezer of home-made ice cream, and any girl can whip that up along with a batch of home-made cookies.

A girl doesn't even have to worry about being able to afford a new dress in the summer time. Nothing is smarter than cotton, come hot weather, and it's hard to tell whether a cotton dress came from the best shop in town or was run up on the family sewing machine.

Furthermore there are (unless she lives in a small college town) more boys around in the summer than in

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Praises Star Editorial
Editor The Star: Please accept my congratulations on the excellence of your editorial on those who would under the guise of religion attempt to promulgate un-Americanism. While I have always been an admirer of your editorial policy, I feel that in this instance you rose above the ordinary; not only because of the appropriateness of your statements, but because of the clarity of your logic. It seems to me you took all the support Rutherford and his clique could possibly have from them in the minds of a thinking and reading public.
It has been said that the pen was mightier than the sword. I am convinced that Hitler's success has been very greatly increased by the activities of the pen and tongue cleverly used by his agents among neighboring states.
We need in America to face squarely the situation and battle against it thoroughly just as our congress seems to be in its attempt to prepare the nation for adequate defense. Brother Spore, our Methodist pastor, frankly says there are Communists in the Methodist church, possibly sent here by foreign agencies to line up with this church for subversive purposes. The newspaper stories about the Dies incident at the Methodist General Conference at Atlantic City bears this out.
I say more power to our editor who not only condemns but logically refutes their arguments; and more power to our preacher who has the courage to face the issue from the pulpit and condemn subversive isms being promulgated under the veil of religion.
Respectfully,
ROYCE WEISENBERGER

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

YESTERDAY, Rossy McAfee comes to Lincoln College, determined to win his father and get an education. A girl on skates runs into him. Later, talking to Coach Hurd, he discovers she is Judy Tolliver, daughter of President Tolliver. Rossy remembers that it was a Tolliver who killed his father. But the president spells his name with an "a" not an "e". Rossy is to room at the Tollivers.

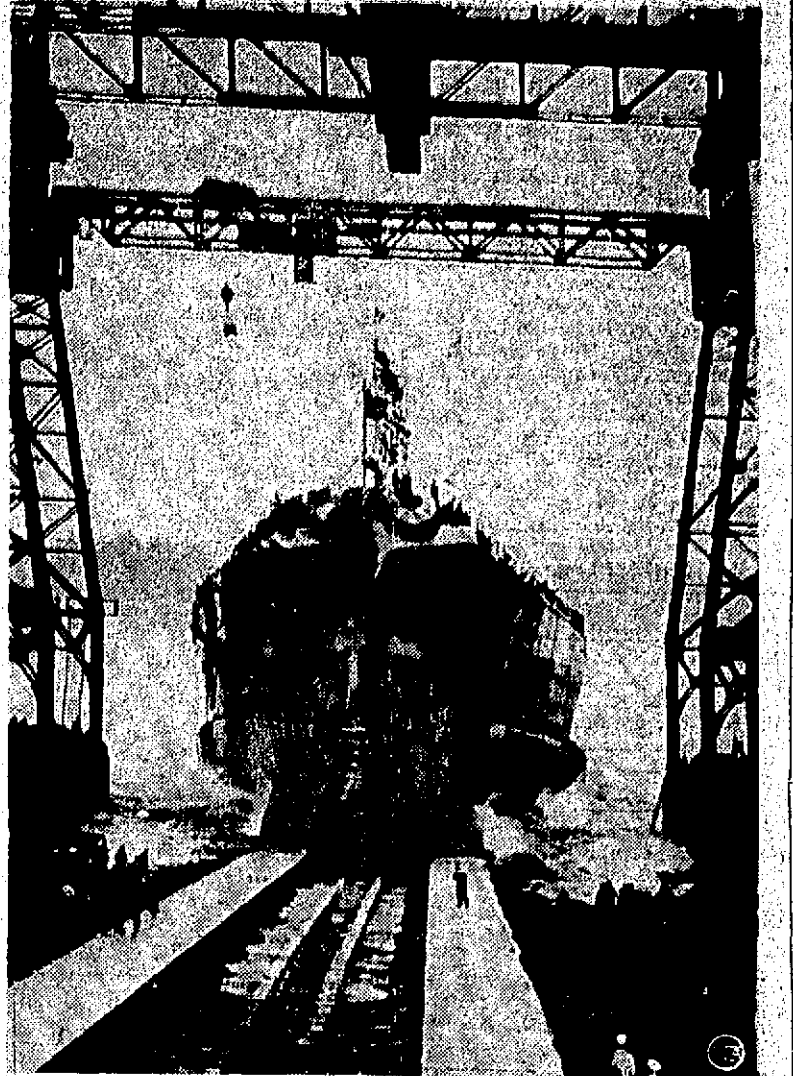

CHAPTER II
"BOY oh boy!" Coach Hurd repeated. "Is Judy Tolliver some she-child? Now, son," he nodded to Rossy McAfee, "I'll show you around a little, and after that we'll go to your home. You'll like it at Doc Tolliver's. Fine man, Prexy is. Mighty interested in our athletic teams. Baseball especially. That's his favorite game."
"Er, did he ever play baseball, reckon?" the lank mountain youth inquired, as they made a round of the gym. He tried to keep cunning out of his voice as he listened to all the coach said about the athletic program, about the basketball team now being his problem child.
Coach Hurd gave him a look. "Maybe not. How should I know? He never said anything about it if he did. Why?" he demanded.
"I—I just wondered," Rossy said confusedly.
Coach Hurd bored him with a look that Rossy was to learn had not iron in it. "You said something a while ago that's got me puzzled. About all Tollivers, whether their name is spelled with an a or e, being rascals."
"I was just palaverin'," Rossy hastened to say. "I open my jaw and things run out sometimes."
"But about that baseball game in Hell'n-Damnation when your father got hit with a bean ball and killed. Was that true?"
"I never meant nothing by that."
Coach Hurd kept boring him. "Well, if that's the way you mean to mean nothing, then you'd better be careful when you do mean something, for you might let something droll out of your mouth that would get you into trouble."
"I'll be careful," McAfee mumbled.
"You'd better be, for you sounded as if you meant the thing was done on purpose; in other words, your dad was murdered in a baseball game; and by a Tolliver. That sort of talk is all right in the back hollers if you're of a mind to back it up with ambushes; but down here we aim to be civilized, and it won't go. I say that to you now in all frankness and friendliness, because now you're in college you want to go about getting educated—and in more things than books."
"Shore, shore!" Rossy agreed glibly.
"So leave the hill feudin' to the hills, and start even here. I keep telling you Dr. Tolliver is another breed of pups. He didn't come from that mob of killers back of Hell'n-Damnation."
"Certain not," Rossy McAfee said.
"Huh!" Coach Hurd muttered, and nodded for the young mountaineer to come along. He carried his grip and bag across the campus and crossed the street from the administration building and girls' dorm to the square large brick house where Dr. Tolliver lived.
"The young man's room is ready," a matronly maid said, as Coach Hurd and Rossy knocked and entered. "This way."
Once in the small but clean and warm room, the coach said, "You just make yourself at home."
A few days later Rossy McAfee was settled in his new home. It was not easy for him to acquire comfort in his new surroundings. He was accustomed to Illustrated by Carol Johnson.

Judy examined the picture of Hannah. "To Rossy, my sweetheart," she read. "So that's the way of it." "That don't mean nothing," Rossy declared. a hard, bare mountain house. He was accustomed to seeing his mother tote water from the spring. Running water scared him in some curious way. He used to sleep on a corded bed. An inner spring mattress, with two sheets, made him want to spread his lankness on the bare floor and take it hard. But an unused bed would have created suspicion, so he toughed it out—and liked it.
He watched Dr. Tolliver warily. Always he searched for clues to the man's former life, the possibility the college president could have been the same person who pitched the bean-ball that killed Rossy's father. But all he saw was a portly, kindly man who could not possibly have been the hated Tolliver.
Judy was just as sweet and fine as she could be. She was always trying to make Rossy feel at home; and he found himself watching her, even making up opportunities to observe her when she would not know he was about.
She was a dream. A dream of athletic poetry. Rossy had seen tall young poplars in mountain storms wave with the same grace that was hers. He had known rose blooms that had the manner of this girl. With no consent of his own, something was changing in him.
Once they were alone in his room. Judy stood and examined the picture of Hannah, a smile hovering at her dimples.
"To Rossy, my sweetheart," she read on the back of the photograph. "So that's the way of it!" she said, shaking a finger playfully at him.
"Ah, that don't mean nothing—specially," Rossy denied, his face hot as a flatiron.
"I see it doesn't!" she teased him.
JUDY helped him to register, when the day came for matriculation. Coach Hurd started the young ball player off on his job as janitor.
"It's the only way we have of subsidizing our athletes," the coach said. "Sweep that floor good, bud!"
Registration was over that late afternoon. The campus now was alive with young people, as Rossy had pictured it in his anticipations. Everything seemed so

Germany Sunday night.
(A Paris wavelength broadcast heard in London said that German cities "now will bear the consequences" of the bombardment of Paris. The announcement was made in German.)
The Allied high command emphasized that the count of fallen Nazi planes was still incomplete. French fliers offered the invaders numerous dog-fights.
Paris Fair Target
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Some military and international law experts here are inclined to the view that Paris—bombed Monday by German warplanes—is a military objective rather than an open city.
They said their definition of an "open city" is one not defended, not designed for military use, not a center or location for manufacturing munitions, not housing troops, not used as the point on departure for any military maneuver, and not a highway for the movement of troops.

Mask Activities

ment's attempts to keep Italy out. All the Fifth Column's Nazi-Fascist coalition needs to make itself more effective is an outstanding leader. Influential New York Germans are now said to be seeking the replacement of Kuhn at head of the Bund with a "real" American without Teutonic accent, who can weld together all the Fascist elements. Leaders of the various organizations—Bund, Mobilizers, Silver Shirts, Knights of the White Camellia on down, have discussed this. Investigation brings out strange and unexpected activities which are covered by patriotic-sounding titles of

It is distributed at meetings of the Christian Front and other groups, even one of "mothers" whose object is proclaimed to oppose "sending the boys overseas." The Library's mailing list is secret, also the list to which the American Fellowship Forum mails a neat magazine filled with anti-democratic propaganda clever as the discussion groups headed by Dr. F. E. Aulenberg. A lately arrived propagandist is Prof. Alfred Von Wegerer, who tells American intellectuals Germany is innocent of war-guilt.
The German Embassy in Washington disclaims propaganda work, but its staff has been augmented, not alone for publicity, but by Gerhard Westrich, a leading Nazi financier. He is a former partner of Dr. Heinrich Albert who in 1918 was indicted here as a German agent. Westrich's job is to promise American businessmen large orders if Germany wins the war. The great majority of Americans of German descent, especially the younger ones, are unquestionably loyal Americans, the government agencies believe. This is true especially in the some organizations. For instance, on the announcement of the formation of the "Molly Pitcher Christian Women's Brigade" by Mrs. Frances Parr, was given considerable publicity in New York recently. A visit to Mrs. Parr revealed her as an anti-Semitic fanatic. She boasted of spreading anti-Semitic propaganda. She said she talked to at least 200 people each day, "just sitting beside them in subways and restaurants", and distributing leaflets.

How Propaganda Is Spread
They all distribute leaflets. Many interchange mailing lists. The German Library of Information denies it pays for anyone's leaflets but its own, "Facts in Review," which is frankly Nazi propaganda. Its latest issue prints the Nazi explanation of the invasion of Holland and Belgium, middle west. New York's Yorkville is the Nazi headquarters for the country; California comes second.

New Orleans Whips Travelers Monday

A Crowd of 12,000 See Pelicans Down Little Rock

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Holding the Little Rock Travelers to eight hits and quaking a rally in the fifth inning, Al Jurisich pitched the New Orleans Pelicans to a 3 to 2 victory in the first game of the series Monday night. It was "men's night" and a crowd estimated at 12,000 attended.

The Travelers threatened seriously in the last inning, but Tyack got his shutout by doubling into the left field crowd. Tony Reyes walked and Fred Reed sacrificed both runners. Fred Wallers batting for Tommy Hinson grounded out, scoring Tyack. Fred Shaffer, batting for Bob Katz, flied out.

PHILIPSBURG, Kans. — (P) — A new city officers has been opened here which sponsors claim is the first one in the United States owned and operated by the consumers who buy its products. It has a capacity of 88,000 barrels of refined fuel daily.

Termites Defeat McKee Millers

Bruner Ladies Softball Team Beats Snow White

The Allison Termites softball team defeated McKee Millers Monday night by a lopsided score of 16 to 4. The Bruner "Society Steppers" downed the Snow White team 11 to 0. Ferguson, Bruner pitcher struck out six in a dally only 3 hits. Bruner will play the Magnolia Oilers of Texarkana Tuesday night at 7:45. The Oilers will be out for revenge as the Bruner team defeated them in the last inning in a game played last week.

F. F. A. Meeting Opens at Hot Springs June 5
HOT SPRINGS — Advance guard of the Arkansas Future Farmers of America moved into headquarters at Couchdale, on Lake Hamilton, Tuesday and began arranging for the annual session which will open Wednesday, and continue to Friday. It will be the 13th annual meeting.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey, T. H. Alford, state commissioner of education, Fred A. Smith, state director of vocational education; Col. T. H. Barton, El Dorado president of the Lion Oil Refining Co.; J. W. Hull, state NYA director, and Harvey C. Couch, Pine Bluff utilities executive, have been invited to speak. National Vice President Billy Bryan of Forrest City will attend. Delegates will approve 10 candidates for the American Farmer degree and candidates for the State Farm degree.

The annual summer camp program will be started immediately after the close of the convention, and will continue through August 24.

Arkansas' Largest Product Is Milk

NEW YORK — Arkansas's annual milk production is valued at almost $9,500,000, the Milk Industry Foundation of New York city said in a statement urging the state's support of June Dairy Month Monday. On January 1, there were 472,000 milk cows valued at $16,820,000 in Arkansas, the statement said. Production last year was 622,000,000 quarts. In addition to fluid milk, Arkansas in 1938 produced 7,888,000 pounds of butter, 3,012,000 pounds of cheese and 1,058,000 gallons of ice cream. Milk was the third largest single source of farm cash income in the state in 1938. Milk distributors are emphasizing the food value of dairy products during Dairy Month.

Rev. Roy Ward Speaks Again Here Tuesday

Evangelist Roy Ward will speak Tuesday night at Garrett Memorial Church on the subject, "The Devil's Attempt to Effect a Universal Black-out."

Monday night the Rev. Mr. Ward preached on the subject, "The Church Is One Possession." In this message he pointed out that Christ did not give to his church riches, fine buildings, social or political prestige, but a message. Those hearing this message were deeply moved and caused to feel the individual responsibility in carrying this message to others.

The Rev. Mr. Ward preaches twice daily, at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m. in the revival now in progress at the Garrett Memorial Baptist church.

Beaver Pests Threaten Model Forest Nursery

ASTORIA, Ore. — (P) — Hundreds of mountain beaver are sweeping Oregon forestry department's 1,000-acre model nursery.

The pests (not the protected fur beaver) ignore poison baits, and Clatsop county authorities fear bounty offers would bring a flood of pelts from other sections.

Charles Henrys, county timber cruiser, estimated the beaver had damaged 80 per cent of the 400,000 young trees in the nursery.
